DEFERRED PROSPERITY CRUTTER BY FRENCH

Official Report from Paris Says the Allies Have Been Driven Back 200 Metres by Germans; Losses on Both Sides Are Heavy

Czar's Armies Repulse Germans and Threaten Tiflis and Koenigsberg, Where Kaiser's Garrisoners Are Reported Depleted

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The official French report issued to-night, while framed in a conservative manner, plainly indicates that a desperate battle has been fought in the Argonne region where the Germans, under the Crown Prince, have been trying to break through for a fresh dash on Paris ever since they recovered from the disastrous retreat that followed their first serious defeat of the war. To accomplish their purpose the Kaiser's forces must reduce the great French fortresses at Verdun.

The report says the enemy's losses were very great and admits the French losses are serious. That the battle has gone against the Allies is shown by the following sentence in the report:

"We are advised of a slight recoil of our troops in the Argonne and of their organization on new lines about 200 metres (217 yards) behind the lines which they previously occupied."

NAVY PRISONERS TAKEN.
A German official report locates the battle in the western part of the Argonne district. The German attack was made on Friday, resulting, Berlin says, in a considerable gain of ground.

Twelve French officers, 731 privates, twelve machine guns and ten smaller guns were captured, between 400 and 500 dead were left on the battlefield by the French, and the 15th French Infantry was practically annihilated, says the Berlin report, which adds the claim that the German losses were comparatively small.

The losses and the intense character of the battle indicate that the forces engaged were numerous and important.

Furious battles are proceeding at La Bassée and in Flanders, while renewal of the battle of Somme is considered imminent.

Concerning the result of the fighting in front of Lonschaert, and to the east of Neuport, the reports of the rival headquarters are curiously at variance. The Germans state that the Allies' losses were very heavy, 180,000 men and 100 machine guns being left dead among the dead. Paris says it is definitely established that the Germans left a large number of dead on the field in front of Lonschaert, the loss of the great, dense forest.

BOARDING ARMIES.
Furious bombardment of Arras and the nearby towns of Bourle and Rocourt by the Germans is reported from Paris. It was noted at Arras, near Neuville-Vesant, that the French gunners on Friday brought wild ranges a German ammunition train and blew up one of the wagons.

Artillery engagements, mining operations, aerial attacks by aviators against supply stations and the battle trenches are detailed in the official report.

Three British Steamers Sunk By Submarine

German U 21 Torpedo Liners on West Coast of England After Giving Crews Time to Escape

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 30.—The German submarine U 21 today began raising British shipping on the west coast of England in the path of trans-Atlantic steamships.

The North Shields steamer Ben Cruachan was torpedoed this morning off Fleetwood, Lancashire. The entire crew, numbering twenty, has landed here. The freight steamer Linda Blanche was sunk at noon only eighteen miles northwest of the Liverpool bar lightship. The crew of eleven men was brought into Fleetwood tonight by the Fleetwood trawler Nebula.

Another steamer is reported to have been sunk by the submarine, which also pursued, but did not overtake the Belfast-Liverpool steamer Orphic.

The captain of the Ben Cruachan, the first ship to suffer, says he and his crew were given ten minutes to leave the ship when overtaken by the submarine. Hardy had the crew get into the boats when a torpedo was fired and the steamer went down.

The Ben Cruachan, which was of 1,975 tons register and belonged to the Morrison Shipping Company, was on a voyage from the Orkney Islands to Liverpool with a general cargo. The crew of the sunken Linda Blanche told the submarine after suddenly coming to the surface, ordered herself to the leeward side of the steamer. The crew of the German submarine gave cigars and cigarettes to the steamer's crew, but the latter eventually given ten minutes to leave the ship.

The steamer Graphie, arriving here tonight, reported her crew saw the submarine twenty miles north-west of the Liverpool bar lightship. The Graphie passed through the wreckage of the Ben Cruachan and the Linda Blanche. They particularly noted a number of oil casks.

The submarine submerged itself when also saw the Graphie. The captain of the latter vessel put out all speed to the windward and took a zig-zag course. The incident was reported to the patrol ship and also to the Forth lightship.

The submarine U 21 is one of the largest in the German navy, but it was not thought she could cruise so far from her base.

The distance from Zebruge, the nearest German submarine base to Liverpool by way of the English Channel and the Irish sea, is almost 1,100 miles. By way of the north of Scotland and down through St. Patrick's Channel between Ireland and the Northwest coast of England the distance is about 1,400 miles.

Germans Start Neutrality Move

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The preliminary organization of a nationwide movement for strict neutrality was effected today at a conference of prominent Germans from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities. Representative Richard Barthelemy, Missouri, presided and resolutions were adopted insisting on the freedom of the sea for the commerce of the United States, the prohibition of the exportation of arms and munitions of war, and the establishment of an American merchant marine.

Peace Move Hinted by German Papers

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 30.—Carefully worded articles on peace are appearing in the newspapers all over Germany. Many of them reflect distrust of the German diplomatic service.

The New Deutschland and other German papers themselves will demand the right to discuss the peace terms before the negotiations open.

Brandeis Announces Aid for Palestine

LOUIS D. Brandeis, the Boston Zion leader, has informed the State Department at Washington that a ship loaded with food for famine-threatened people of Palestine and Syria will be dispatched from the United States by the Provisional Zionist Committee. It is announced that the ship will be conducted for the British, French and Turkish governments. (See article by Mr. Brandeis on last page of the Editorial Section.)

THE OVER SUNSHINE BUSTER SHIP BILL

Both Parties in Senate Agree on Recess Beginning at Midnight; Senator Smoot Talks for Eleven Hours and Thirty-five Minutes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Contrary to the wishes of the President, as they were understood to have been delivered to the Senate leaders, there will be no session of the Senate tomorrow. The session adjourned at 11:15 o'clock tonight for a recess until Monday at 10 a. m.

While the filibuster against the ship bill, already thirty-six hours long, was on today, administration leaders asserted that the Senate would be kept in session through the night, all day tomorrow and Sunday night in an effort to break down Republican opposition.

So confident were some Democrats that this program would be carried out that Senator James sent for a bed and had it set up in his committee room, so that he might get another rest during the night.

Other Democrats, however, balked at the idea of working throughout Sunday, and made emphatic protests to Senator Kern. So general did the protest become that late in the afternoon Majority Leader Kern notified the Republicans that at midnight he would ask unanimous consent to take a recess until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Republicans agreed to this throughout the long night, after Senator Smoot took the floor, they gave interruptions, and then only when Democrats proposed questions for the purpose of impressing upon the Senator the fact that he was weary. He talked for eleven hours and thirty-five minutes.

RELIEVED BY SUTHERLAND.
When Senator Sutherland took the floor to relieve Mr. Smoot he found among his auditors Mr. Tumulty, secretary to the President, who had snatched a few hours' rest after remaining in the Democratic room until an early hour. It was apparent that Senator Sutherland intended to save his voice, for he spoke in such a low tone that Senator Owen, then temporarily on guard for the Democrats, made the point of order that "mumbling is not debate."

Mr. Sutherland took exception to the language used by Senator Owen, saying it might be parliamentary, but to him it was personally offensive. Senator Owen insisted upon his point of order and Senator Sutherland said he knew of no rule by which the tone in which a Senator spoke could be regulated.

Republicans confronted their Democratic colleague with a precedent of their own making. In the Democratic filibuster against the Adamson railroad bill, Senator Stone had been called to order for speaking in such low tones that he could not be heard. Vice-President Sherman, then in the chair, reminded the Senator that not even the chief clerk could hear him, whereupon Mr. Stone retorted that if Senators could not hear their night clerk, how could they hear the President?

The official reporters could hear him and that, he said, was enough for the "mumbling" rule.

LODGE TAKES FLOOR.
Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who was the first to speak, took the floor, echoed Senator Sutherland's denunciation of White House interference.

"I deeply regret," he said, "that the secretary to the President is not here to tell me of any rule by which the tone in which a Senator speaks could be regulated. I think it would be well also Congress had been converted into a mere legislative body. The President will find that there should be some visible symbol of his authority present."

It would seem too much to expect the President to be present himself, but he has been seen in the corridors of the Senate building, and he has been seen in the corridors of the Senate building, and he has been seen in the corridors of the Senate building.

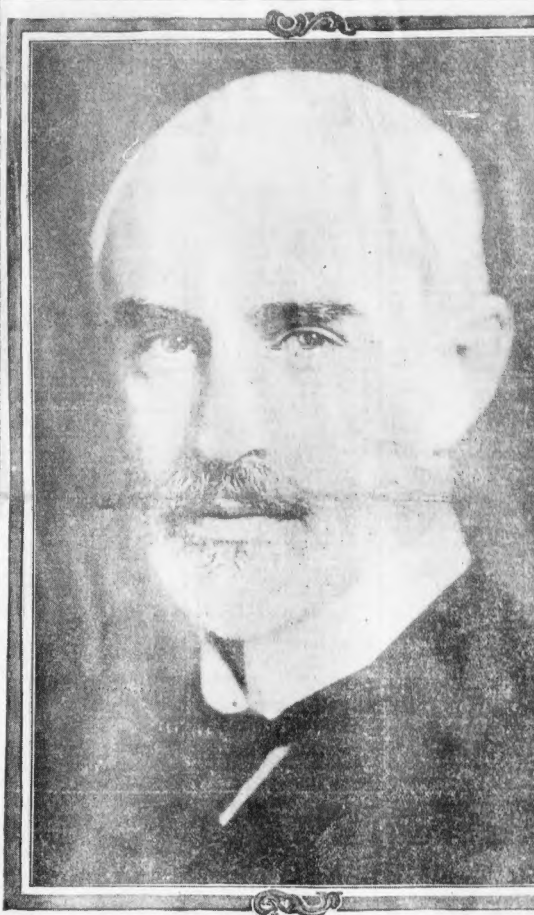

The Senator from Florida in his speech charged that John D. Rockefeller had been converted into a mere legislative body. The President will find that there should be some visible symbol of his authority present."

DRIVER SHOT BY YOUTHFUL THIEF

L. F. Brown Falls from Bullet in Pursuit; Boy Under Arrest.

While pursuing a youth for stealing a bottle of whiskey from his wagon, Leon F. Brown of No. 12 Lawrence street, Cambridge, was shot in the right hip yesterday afternoon by Simon McDermott, seventeen, of No. 9 West Third street, South Boston, who was arrested later by Patrolman Clime of the Broadway station.

Brown was driving a wheeled liquor wagon on Broadway Extension when he was taking whiskey from the wagon and ordered him to get out. He refused and ran. Brown gave chase, but the thief pulled a revolver and fired one shot. The bullet lodged in the right hip. Brown was removed to the Relief Hospital.

By WILLIAM HAVEN ROSS.

STAFF CORRESPONDENT OF THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Prosperity for Boston, for New England and for the United States is the kernel of what John H. Fahey, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said to me in his analysis of present conditions in this country and his forecast for its future.

I came here from Boston especially to learn his views, knowing that he had recently made an extensive and official tour of the South and West, and knowing how familiar he was with the situation in the East, his own section.

I was aware that after his long journey of investigation he had talked with President Wilson at the White House. I was also aware how general is the assumption that what he said to the President is regarded by the latter as of great significance and value.

I came to Washington on the eve of a most interesting convention that the representative business men of this country are to hold here next week. I came with the knowledge that President Wilson is on Wednesday next to address these delegates of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and that it is general expectation that he will state to them his reason for believing that the country is already experiencing a revival of trade and that the expansion will be as healthy as it will be substantial.

In Washington I found public interest in what President Wilson will say at the annual meeting of this Chamber, at which Secretary of State Bryan and Edward A. Filene of Boston will also deliver addresses, to be of the keenest nature. Many believe that, as far as business is concerned, it will be

FEAR GARNERS SLAIN IN BOAT

Former North Adams Residents Disappear Mysteriously in Woods of Florida.

NORTH ADAMS, Jan. 28.—(Special.)—Gardner of Springfield and Almon E. Gardner of Baltimore, both former residents of this city, are believed to have been murdered by their negro henchman on the St. Johns river in Florida, where they have been fishing for six weeks.

Mrs. Charlotte Gardner of this city, the aged mother of the two men, has received telegrams from the mayors of Welles and Palatka, Fla., stating that the Gardner brothers had been away for some time when their negro henchman appeared at the latter town alone. It was learned later that the negro had given the boat away.

NEGRO DISAPPEARS.
This news started an investigation, but the negro could not then be found, and although the police of every town in the district are searching for him their hunt has been unavailing.

Besides their mother the brothers had three sisters in North Adams and a brother in Washington. The sisters have engaged private detectives in Boston to go to Florida and start an investigation. Henry E. Gardner, the Washington brother, is supposed to have started another investigation.

WERE WEALTHY CONTRACTORS.
The brothers were wealthy contractors. Horace E. Gardner was a partner in the firm of Horace E. Gardner & Co., which was doing business in the St. Johns river.

Both men were in the habit of carrying large sums of money and were valuable diamonds. That they were in the habit of carrying large sums of money was shown by a letter to a North Adams sister in which one of the brothers told of his having one of his fingers badly lacerated while asleep by a negro trying to get one of these diamonds ring.

The advice received from Florida state that the negro is believed to have murdered the men in their boat.

Foot and Mouth Disease Found in State's Herd

WORCESTER, Jan. 28.—(Special.)—A case of foot and mouth disease was found in a herd of cattle at the Worcester State House Asylum, where the cows are already suffering from the disease.

According to Dr. Perry, seven of the cows are already suffering from an advanced stage of the disease. It is believed that these first became afflicted and that the rest of the herd quickly contracted the disease. It is probable that the entire herd will be slaughtered.

During the recent epidemic several cases of the dreaded disease were reported in this vicinity. It was believed, however, that all danger of further contagion had been obviated with the slaughter of the cattle then affected.

Dr. Perry inspected the asylum herd a week ago and at that time the cows were apparently healthy. The milk from the cows has been used in the asylum.

Pedaling Guilty of Manslaughter

After the jury had been out for seven and a half hours, Antonio Pedalino, also known as Vincenzo Pedalino, was found guilty of manslaughter by Judge John W. Sullivan in the Suffolk Superior Court.

Pedalino was charged with the murder of a woman named Mary Sullivan, who was killed on the street in Boston. The jury found Pedalino guilty of manslaughter.

Dispute Over Horne Fortune Daughter Seeking Her Share

MRS. JOSEPH L. RUINS, FORMER KATHERINE HORNE

Several Officials Mentioned in Fennec Suit Expected to Take the Stand.

The fifth week of the so-called "Tootles" case, which opens tomorrow in the Suffolk Superior Court, is eagerly awaited by the spectators who have jammed into previous sessions of this celebrated case, because several officials, said to have agreed to incriminate at Fennec's trial, are expected to testify within a day or two.

This is the trial of a $250,000 will which Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan has brought against Harry K. Mansfield, proprietor of Fennec's bar, for alleged breach of promise to marry her.

Testimony of other witnesses is also awaited with interest, a number of women are to be heard. Their names are not announced yet.

Fennec's name is expected to testify. His name was mentioned in the testimony of James Sullivan, who gave the names of three "prominent men who saw Miss Ryan."

TO CALL CHAUFFEURS.
Two chauffeurs are to be heard. One of them, Timothy Mahoney, who has been on the stand before, is due to resume his land before the jury.

Mahoney was a chauffeur for Mansfield when Miss Ryan was in the Raleigh street apartment and at the Fennec's bar. He was called as a witness by Attorney Sullivan.

On the day Mahoney was on the witness stand a recent argument between Judge Fennec and Attorney Sullivan asked the court to place Mahoney in the custody of an officer.

After the jury had been out for seven and a half hours, Antonio Pedalino, also known as Vincenzo Pedalino, was found guilty of manslaughter by Judge John W. Sullivan in the Suffolk Superior Court.

Babies, Ill and Suffering, Cannot Get Into Hospital

SIX babies, all suffering from measles, were turned away from the Boston City Hospital today because the hospital was full.

The babies, who were all under the age of two, were brought to the hospital by their parents. The hospital was full of patients, and the babies were turned away because there was no room for them.

The babies, who were all suffering from measles, were turned away from the hospital. Their parents are now looking for other places where they can take their babies.

U. S. TO DOPT A NEW NAVAL POLICY IN 1916

Ineffective Scout Cruiser to be Replaced by Powerful and Speedy Battle Cruiser.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The United States will adopt a new naval policy next year as a result of the Russian Revolution, according to the House, its new program displacing the present British type of scout cruiser with the more powerful and speedier battle cruiser.

25,000,000 BATTLE CRUISER.
"The war is too young to say just what extent our policy should be changed," said Secretary of the Navy, "but it is evident that the present armament in Europe now will have some effect upon the reconstruction of the fleet. It is not at all probable that my next recommendation will be a request for a battle cruiser to cost $25,000,000."

With the "big navy" measure enacted in an attempt to speed up the bill the House today began discussion of proposed changes in the navy appropriation measure under the five year rule. It is not at all probable that the next recommendation will be a request for a battle cruiser to cost $25,000,000.

AIRMAN BLOWS UP GERMAN DEPOT

Pegoud Drops Aeroplane on One Wing and Traps Nine Bombs with Deadly Effect.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The exploits of military airmen are attracting almost as much attention as the operations of the armies themselves. The hero of the hour is Pegoud, who won fame before the war by "jumping the loop" over the heads of apolloid crowds.

Pegoud's latest achievement is the destruction of a German ammunition depot in the north of France. Flying at a height of 2,000 feet, he tossed his aeroplane on one wing and dropped nine bombs on the depot. He reports that every bomb hit the target, and the series of explosions which followed almost upset his machine.

He was pursued by a fierce gunfire but returned unharmed to the French lines. On the day before this exploit Pegoud destroyed a capital building. Other feats are described by the official "Paris witness" in a report on recent aerial fighting made public by the War Office today.

On January 15, Pegoud forced a German biplane to return to its base. The same day, near Soissons, an aviator who pursued him appeared to be hit and was brought to the ground sharply in the enemy's zone.

Pope Prays for Cessation of War

BOULDEAU, via Paris, Jan. 30.—In reply to a letter from Cardinal Paul Marie Andrieu, Archbishop of Bordeaux, Pope Benedict has written the following:

"When we see each day the most flourishing provinces covered with blood and bereavement, we cannot help being filled with anguish and looking forward to the future with the deepest anxiety."

Consequently nothing seems to us more desirable than the cessation of the long, cruel war. To the rapid attainment of that end we have directed, as you know, all our prayers and efforts.

May God turn toward thoughts of peace the hearts of those who hold in their hands the destinies of the peoples.

FEW MINUTES! NO INDIGESTION, GAS SOR STOMACH---PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Digests all food, absorbs gases and stops fermentation at once.

Wonder what upset your stomachs—whether portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if you are gassy and upset, and what you eat has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and ache; your bowels and acids and cramps undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and gas.

Millions of men and women today know this thing without reason. If your food is a damage; if you are gassy and upset, and what you eat has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and ache; your bowels and acids and cramps undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and gas.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL ABSOLVES GREAT BRITAIN AND ATTACKS GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

'WORSHIP OF THE WATCHDOGS RESPONSIBLE FOR MILITARISM'

Noted Writer Blames German Ruler for War and Declares Britain Is Not a "Beast."

By Israel Zangwill.

(Copyright, 1910, by Israel Zangwill.)

London, January 23.

Since Swift published his tract on "The Conduct of the Allies," in 1711, no such patriotic pamphleteering has been done in England as by Mr. Bernard Shaw in his "Common Sense. About the War." It is all the more regrettable therefore that he should weaken his case and ours by blurring over the common sense distinction between British militarism and Prussian—the one sub-conscious and defensive, the other over-conscious and aggressive.

The junker, he tells us, is merely (in the dictionary) "a country gentleman," and since England indubitably possesses country gentlemen, she is as "civilized" as Prussia. On the same principle, Taube means "a dove," and since there are doves in my garden, there are also death-dealing aeroplanes—and of the precise Prussian pattern. The plain fact is that since the young Pomeranian squire, Bismarck, fought his twenty-five duels, the Prussian "country gentlemen" in the course of caricaturing that man of genius has developed so odious a type of militarism that the German name for his class sinks in the nostrils of civilization.

Mr. Shaw begins, indeed, by allying separate categories to the junker and the militarist, but practically runs the two as synonymous. The sober and orthophilous Sir Edward Grey and the dramatic and well-endowed Kaiser are pilloried as a pair.

BRITISH AND PRUSSIAN MILITARISM ABOUT SAME.

Mr. Shaw's pretext for heclouding a distinction which is as clear to his uncommon as to my common sense, is that in practice British militarism and Prussian war are much the same. But, then, and it is not for a writer to put together what a merciful heaven has put asunder. There are the times

"In Truth England is a gorged lion and Germany a hungry wolf—The one wants repose, the other conquest."—Israel Zangwill.

The parts of Prime Minister and War Minister, and our two greatest naval experts, Lord Fisher and Sir Percy Scott—were "like an owl at night" for the "barbarians of peace." And despite his crisis, Lord Kitchener is far from being a military dictator. Even the militarist London Times reports the efforts of the Ministry to take shelter under its name, and points out sternly that the responsibility of the Cabinet remains one and indivisible.

And while the Prussian officer is saturated with the Treitschke philosophy of force, and while, as Treitschke himself prophesied in 1834, the ideas of the German philosophers find issue in Bismarck's blood, the British officer is an amiable Christian gentleman, only too occupied with Jerusalem and the Mysteries of the Beast.

Who can imagine a German General Jordan? A British General Jordan is equally inconceivable. Kitchener himself spent five years in the Palestine survey, and excavations for trenches probably interest him less than excavations for his archaeology. Even that grim seagull Lord Fisher would not be subjective to the creed of the hardi, though he might practice it.

As the peacocks' tail achieves its splendour without pigment, so Britain has achieved her empire without imperialism. Absent-mindedly she has acquired a fifth of the globe, humdrum, as Joseph Chamberlain pointed out, "into account of the best parts of the earth." It was not even due to her and her empire-building.

It was not until 1904 that Parliament consented to legalize a standing army at all, and to this day the army created by the Bill of Rights has little the measure of autonomy conceded to it in 1531—to be relegated annually in the House of Commons. If that is not a sufficient refutation of the Harvard professor, let it be recalled that while the Prussian principle of universal conscription has been adopted all over the continent, not even the impassioned crusade of a veteran Lord Roberts, forbidding the war, could win England to even the semblance of conscription.

The political genius of England has always understood that civilization is—as its name implies—an affair of civilians, and hence even the War Office must be run by a civilian! It is now run by Lord Kitchener, that is the exception which proves not only the rule, but the utter unpreparedness of England. At the greatest crisis in her history Mr. Asquith was doubtless I am a locomotive engineer, from military service. But the Machiavellian foreign policy imagined by the continent is a myth. It was not even continuous until Harding came to the Foreign Office to carry out the Edwardian plan of isolating Germany; and this policy was merely defensive and apprehensive.

It is Germany that has refused Mr. Churchill's reiterated overtures to reduce armaments. Her responsibility for the present war is as clear as day.

STANDING ARMY HAS TO BE RELEGATED.

Why, Professor von Mach need only consult our marching songs to see with what gay alacrity the British marches to war. From Armageddon it is a long, long way to Tipperary; yet "Tipperary" is only typical of all our marching songs. In a list of nearly eighty, traditionally attached to different regiments, "Rule, Britannia!" occurs only once, and the majority of our warlike advance on the enemy to the irrelevant strains of "Come, Ladies and Gents," "The Lincolnshire Poacher" and such like rustic melodies. The self-conscious anti-German war songs provided by a Times correspondent fill still-born. "Rule, Britannia!" is the most famous tune in our repertoire, and it is the only one that has been used in a masque of Alfred by a poet, whose real achievement was his rustic description of "The Sea-Song" in those most famous lines: "To teach the young idea how to shoot."

ers as often as he has remarked them. I like Warren Hastings. Rhine was all concerned in the Rhine of Germany.

As to the matter, Britain even, to discover the empire, and all Chamberlain's explanations, to think imperially, to think himself against an insubordinate insubordination. Only yesterday a powerful section panted to cut away our colonies, those colonies for which Germany would have the world in blood. It may be urged that sub-consciousness is deep enough to satisfy. But I prefer plainness to guile.

This is not to say that Britain possesses a conscious militarist minority—especially in the shape of poets physically inequipped as is clear to everybody, except Mr. Shaw—as by surprise at England taking a hand in it. It is to say that the attempt to paint Germany as a wolf and England as a lion, Mr. Shaw paints England as a lion, with Germany, apparently, as the lair. In truth, England is a gorged lion and Germany a hungry wolf. She wants repose, the other conquest.

Subconsciously as John has acquired his empire, he is naturally conscious of any attempt to rob him of a single sterile square inch, and the old spirit who once has entered have annexed common land, to regard any diminution of his title as blasphemous.

The Prussian junker appears to him a land-grabbing paragon. But it must be admitted that the satisfaction of his tenacity, their readiness to die for him, is almost a compensatory justification for his potential potentialism.

That Germany might well be considered some of the indolence of land in a proposition the Daily Chronicle allowed me to make in London in 1912, and the New York Tribune in Vienna. But the Berliner Tageblatt would not print it because of the corollary that Germany in her turn must give back Alsace and Lorraine.

If force is this nakedly proclaimed as the sole arbiter—if the Only yesterday a powerful section panted to cut away our colonies, those colonies for which Germany would have the world in blood. It may be urged that sub-consciousness is deep enough to satisfy. But I prefer plainness to guile.

This is not to say that Britain possesses a conscious militarist minority—especially in the shape of poets physically inequipped as is clear to everybody, except Mr. Shaw—as by surprise at England taking a hand in it. It is to say that the attempt to paint Germany as a wolf and England as a lion, Mr. Shaw paints England as a lion, with Germany, apparently, as the lair. In truth, England is a gorged lion and Germany a hungry wolf. She wants repose, the other conquest.

Subconsciously as John has acquired his empire, he is naturally conscious of any attempt to rob him of a single sterile square inch, and the old spirit who once has entered have annexed common land, to regard any diminution of his title as blasphemous.

The Prussian junker appears to him a land-grabbing paragon. But it must be admitted that the satisfaction of his tenacity, their readiness to die for him, is almost a compensatory justification for his potential potentialism.

That Germany might well be considered some of the indolence of land in a proposition the Daily Chronicle allowed me to make in London in 1912, and the New York Tribune in Vienna. But the Berliner Tageblatt would not print it because of the corollary that Germany in her turn must give back Alsace and Lorraine.

As to the matter, Britain even, to discover the empire, and all Chamberlain's explanations, to think imperially, to think himself against an insubordinate insubordination. DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

35 cent bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thin, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—you but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and straggly, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance—an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 35 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that all you really can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. For sale by F. J. Jerns and all good Druggists.

Professor von Mach of Harvard makes fun of the claim that we are fighting to put down militarism, since England, he alleges, spends 80 per cent. per capita more for armaments than Germany. This is a familiar ignominious cliché—or missing of the point.

As if the voracious Quaker would not get a watchdog when burglars were about!

It is not the size of the watchdog that makes military Britain, do what makes military Britain, with possessions scattered all over the world, must, necessarily, have more watchdogs than Germany. Gilbert has observed of the British burglar that when he is not burgling "he loves to lie a-basking in the sun." But the German burglar never naps. He reads Bernhardi on burgling, attends of peace, and in these hushed intervals we in England have peace from the soldier. His swagger is limited to the parks, his fascination for the female sex to the symphony of the gramophone.

In Germany the Heutnant is the unquestioned Adonis even of the drawing room. During the Beer War we had an eruption of general photographs, almost ousting the actor from the shop window.

But the moment the war ended the actor resumed the centre of the stage.

Nor is it only the Prussian army that is military. The same mechanical brutality has infected every department of the state, and as the president of an emigration bureau with ramifications in Germany I have witnessed in vain against the barbarity of railway porters, sailors and frontier officials.

Why, Professor von Mach need only consult our marching songs to see with what gay alacrity the British marches to war. From Armageddon it is a long, long way to Tipperary; yet "Tipperary" is only typical of all our marching songs. In a list of nearly eighty, traditionally attached to different regiments, "Rule, Britannia!" occurs only once, and the majority of our warlike advance on the enemy to the irrelevant strains of "Come, Ladies and Gents," "The Lincolnshire Poacher" and such like rustic melodies. The self-conscious anti-German war songs provided by a Times correspondent fill still-born. "Rule, Britannia!" is the most famous tune in our repertoire, and it is the only one that has been used in a masque of Alfred by a poet, whose real achievement was his rustic description of "The Sea-Song" in those most famous lines: "To teach the young idea how to shoot."

There is nothing to do with rifles. And even "Rule, Britannia!" is more concerned that sea power shall save the islanders from enslavement than that they shall build up an empire by it.

the War Office must be run by a civilian! It is now run by Lord Kitchener, that is the exception which proves not only the rule, but the utter unpreparedness of England. At the greatest crisis in her history Mr. Asquith was doubtless I am a locomotive engineer, from military service. But the Machiavellian foreign policy imagined by the continent is a myth. It was not even continuous until Harding came to the Foreign Office to carry out the Edwardian plan of isolating Germany; and this policy was merely defensive and apprehensive.

It is Germany that has refused Mr. Churchill's reiterated overtures to reduce armaments. Her responsibility for the present war is as clear as day.

MONARCH OF ALL NEWSPAPERS IN ENGLAND SUNDAY PAPERS

NEWS SECTION PART II.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 11, 1915.

MISS GARMONG GOT THAT $116,000

She Brought the Suit "Only for a Name for Her Daughter," So the Jury Gave Her the Largest Sum Ever Obtained in an American Breach of Promise Case

ASHLEY, 'OUT,' STILL BOSS OF NEW BEDFORD

And Ed. Hathaway, Who Beat
Charles for the Mayoralty,
Asks Legislative Help.

HOUSE VOTES ON TUESDAY

The big question before the Massachusetts House of Representatives on Tuesday will be whether "Old" Hathaway, the new Mayor of New Bedford, shall be empowered to fire the "Charley" Ashley licensing board.

"Charley" Ashley has made a profession of being Mayor of New Bedford and has done well at it. Hathaway surprised the State in November by beating Ashley for re-election. Hathaway has recently taken the Mayor's office, but he has discovered to his great indignation that this is all he has taken. The town belongs to Ashley.

Ashley controls the city government. If it should come to a showdown, and Hathaway has discovered this.

Ashley appoints also make up the licensing board, the licensing board controls the saloons, the saloons are controlled by local brewers and the brewers are supposed to provide the "right" sort of majority candidate with his war chest.

NOT A REFORMER.
Mayor Hathaway, who has just turned the corner of forty, has served several years in the House of Representatives. He is personally acquainted with perhaps three-fourths of its members. He is a Republican and the Republicans today have everything at the state House except the governorship.

The new Mayor is neither a reformer nor a pirate. He believes, however, that there is a limit to how wide open a New England city may be and he tells his friends that New Bedford passed that limit a long, long time ago.

Hathaway wants to drive the professional gambling element out of his city. He wants to close the dives. He wants to shut the speak-easies. He desires to swing the big stick on the proprietors of those resorts whose luck rooms have been used for the ruin and disgrace of New Bedford airblood.

The new Mayor has made his purpose clear to the proprietors of legalized saloons. He has asked their help in driving the shady element out of business. He has made it plain that, under the Hathaway regime, no licensed saloonkeeper will be asked to pay one dollar above and beyond the price of his license.

ASHLEY TIES HIS HANDS.
Hathaway tells his friends that he is bound to find the liquor talk entirely unrepresentative. He began to dig under the surface and he discovered, he says, that "Charley" Ashley, taking a vacation from the arduous office duties of Mayor, is still the Big Boss of the Whaling City.

Indicted into office, recently, the new Mayor discovered one of the last official acts of Ashley to have been the naming of one License Commissioner for so long a term that all three of the commissioners are led-year Mayor Hathaway's official reach. So Hathaway, before the Republican Legislature asking for help. It knows the legislature and he knows the ropes. His bill to "establish a licensing board for the city of New Bedford," which means firing the "Charley" Ashley board and introducing three Hathaway men, came flying from the Committee on Cities by a vote of 12 to 1.

The Senate achievement was due to Senator "Andy" Doyle of New Bedford, a dyed-in-the-wool Republican. Doyle has been a legislator ten years or more. He is a terrific figure on the Hill and a great mixer. The Hathaway bill passed the Senate because "Andy" wanted it passed.

ALL FOUR REPUBLICANS.
Since that time the friends of "Charley" Ashley have been lobbying the House. The battle on Tuesday will be fiercely fought. One indication of the fact that "Charley" Ashley has lost little of his real power in New Bedford is shown by the fact that out of four New Bedford representatives in the House three are lined up with Charles, while only one stands with Mayor Hathaway.

All four of these New Bedford Representatives are Democrats. While "Charley" Ashley nominally, at least, is a Democrat, in New Bedford the local politics, however, there is never any drawing of party lines. In city politics you are either "with" Ashley or "against" him. "For Charley" or "With" Ashley.

Remarkable Ruling Made By Presiding Judge Who Heard Former Society Girl's Plea Against Millionaire Son of U. S. Senator

Miss Garmong in State of Collapse After Five-Day Ordeal on Stand—Says the Money Will Be Spent to Educate Her Child

The largest amount ever awarded by an American jury in a breach of promise suit was that given to Miss Elizabeth Leona Garmong, who sued John Brooks Henderson, Jr., millionaire aide chamberlain and lawyer of Washington, and son of United States Senator Henderson of Missouri, at Bangor, as reported the past week. What were the circumstances which led this Maine jury to give her a verdict of $116,000?

Miss Garmong at Bangor yesterday declared that she fought for a name for her pretty four-year-old daughter Mary, more than for money.

"I was not after money," said Miss Garmong. "Money was a secondary consideration. I had the interest of one little girl at stake. It was for that I fought, and for that I suffered all this humiliation and publicity. No law firm, all the wealth in the world could have induced me to fight who considers it if it were not for my baby. I would have said that."

"There were times when I felt I could not breathe but it seemed that I must give up. It made me shudder. I told my lawyers I must do my best and then I thought of my baby and her future and I said to myself, 'I will not let anything happen to my baby.'"

CARED NOTHING FOR SELF.
I cared nothing for myself, if Mary had not been here I never could have undergone the ordeal.

"I thought he would keep his promise," said Miss Garmong. "I thought he would have my name when I found I could not get that I wanted that baby be spoiled for life."

"What shall I do with the money?" I must not talk about that. My lawyers have advised me not to make any statement, but I will say that Mary gets a good education and that she shall never have to suffer as I have suffered. Her name and my plans are not for the public. They are my private affairs.

"There have been too many such suits. I wish now it might do for Mary's sake and my own. I have suffered enough. I have seen a frightful stream of misery and I have been here."

Miss Garmong was suffering today from a nervous collapse following the excitement of the five-day trial which closed Wednesday, with the largest verdict ever awarded in New England in a breach of promise suit, and one of the largest ever rendered in the country.

STAYED FOR $250,000.
Miss Garmong sued for $250,000. The Sunday AMERICAN's report today for the first time all the letters that she could interpret as indicative of love or affection. She answered, "I think they are all sentimental."

The letters were written by Henderson from the fashionable Metropolitan club in Washington, from Bangor, and from other points. Counsel for Henderson called attention to the fact that nearly all the letters were "sentimental" and devoid of affection and businesslike demand of affection.

Newsboy Invites White House Baby to Join the Y.M.C.A.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Baby Sayre, the two-week-old grandson of the President, and Secretary to the President, Tammy, received a joint invitation today from "Sammy" April, the White House newsboy, to join the Y.M.C.A.

"Join you and Sayre join," said Sammy to Mr. Tammy.

"Join the Y.M.C.A.," said Sammy, "and Sayre is the baby who the people who are more in his confidence."

Mayor to Deliver Elks' Ball Toast

The annual ball of Boston Lodge of Elks to be held in Symphony Hall on February 1 is to include several surprise features. Mayor Curley is to deliver the 11 o'clock toast.

CURLEY VETOES HIGHER SALARIES

Mayor Curley vetoed the City Council order, late yesterday, that gave higher salaries to the probation officers of the Municipal Court, as well as to the Probation, East Boston and Chelsea District Courts. He declared that no salary increase would be permitted until the municipal budget had been approved, carrying with it allowances for the payment of higher salaries.

Methodists May Get a $500,000 Church

As a result of a meeting of the trustees under the Jackson deed of the Methodist Religious Society in Boston, it is probable a $500,000 church edifice will be erected and that the bishop presiding at the next Methodist conference will be asked to separate the congregations of the old Bromfield Street M. E. Church, and the Tremont Street M. E. Church.

Salem Health Board Locked Out, but Will Fight for Its Rights

Citizens of Salem do not know whether they have a health board or not. One of the last official acts of the late director of health, Lally, was to appoint a health board. It consisted of Dr. Philip Fineman, H. K. Curtis and Robert Schindler.

These three men planned a meeting for last night. They went to City Hall, but could not get into the room which had been allotted them. All doors were locked. The board told their friends this was done purposely.

The city government refuses to recognize this board. Dr. Fineman states the board was legally appointed and will engage counsel to determine their rights.

O'CONNELL AND EARLE WIN POSTS

Dispatches from Washington last night told of the appointment of Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Earle as postmasters at Cohasset.

Mr. Earle was the Republican postmaster at Cohasset, and has served as a holdover for a year. Congressman Thomas C. Thayer, defeated for re-election, supported Earle for re-election. The Democratic nomination was made by Mr. Earle's former opponent.

The appointment was a direct blow to the Democratic organization in the district.

Charles D. Smith was named at Gloucester, Anthony J. Cream at Taunton, Joseph M. Towle at Foxbury, George W. Jones at Falmouth and George L. Oliver at New Bedford.

Civilian Held on Charge of Flashing Real Police Badge

The Chelsea police say that Max Wasserman can't wear a police badge because he isn't on the force, and brought Max into court yesterday to have it out with him.

Max is twenty-three years old and lives at No. 138 Chestnut street, Chelsea. According to the police, Max secured a badge and wore it on his vest, where he can "flash" it by slipping back his coat.

Max pleaded not guilty and was held in $200 for another hearing tomorrow. He was also told not to flash the badge before the hearing tomorrow. The hearing was held by Judge J. J. Sullivan.

His appointment was a direct blow to the Democratic organization in the district.

INQUIRY ON RAISE IN PRICE OF BREAD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—So far as it was announced here that the largest verdict ever awarded in New England in a breach of promise suit, and one of the largest ever rendered in the country.

It is reported in the legislation that there is an illegal combination in the form of the American and Trust Co. between the New York Produce Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade and the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce.

Another high mark was made by May wheat on the present movement in Chicago when it closed at $1.51. An advance of more than two cents was made in the last few minutes of trading.

Trading was heavy and the market excited throughout the session.

For FAIR Price-Lists— —that can be “taken SERIOUSLY”

THIS is a deliberate Attempt to cut the “Haggle” out of Tire buying and selling—for Consumers.

It is also an Attempt to set right, with the Public—thousands of well-intentioned Retailers of Tires and Auto-Accessories.

These have, by circumstances, been forced into the gradual adoption of a most Unwholesome Custom, VIZ.—that of selling “PRICE LISTS” instead of selling Tires, to Consumers—of selling Discounts OFF Price-Lists, instead of selling Mileage and Service in Tires.

It is not an Attempt to make things harder for the Kind of Tire Manufacturer whose Product apparently cannot be sold without the doubtful Expedient of the Padded Price-List.

Said Expedient consisting of an alleged “Price-List” which is purposely printed “UP” so that it may then be deliberately discounted DOWN by the Dealer,—to provide “a Special Bargain” to the Consumer who is Unwary, or who is too busy to investigate Values.

This Attempt is being made also with a sincere desire to save the Retailer of Tires from the consequences of further growth of that Padded Price-List CUSTOM which is inciting Consumers to patronize CUT-PRICE SPECIALISTS and band together to maintain “Supply Depts.” with which to fight what they, erroneously, consider EXTORTIONATE Prices and Profits supposed to be charged by Retailers, on “Price-List” basis.

Without the PADDED Price-List, which in some cases show as much as 55% Retail Profit on Tires (as much as $11.00 Profit on a single 34 x 4 Plain-Tread Tire), the “CUT PRICE SPECIALISTS” would have no reason for existence, could not make headway, nor threaten to cut the market from beneath the Dealer’s feet.

WITH the Padded Price-List, and the bitter Price-Cutting conditions that abnormal profits always invite,—the Dealer makes, in the end, much less profit, on average, than the normal and reasonable one to which he is entitled.

Thus he loses three ways, through the Padded Price-List Custom.

1st. Through the impairment of his legitimate Market and Volume, by “Cut-price Specialists,” and by Consumers Supply Depts.

2nd. Through obtaining a lower AVERAGE profit per Tire during the year, because he must meet the keen price-cutting Competition which excessive profits always invite.

3rd. Through the heavy increase in the cost of Selling Tires, for Salesman’s Time, when each Customer feels that he must Shop-around a number of different Dealers Stores, in order to find out which will give him the largest Discount of the Price-List of the Tire he wants to buy.

More costly and dangerous to the Dealer than all three of these is the Undermining of Public Confidence, in the Kind of Store that is popularly believed to have several Prices for the same article (an unreliable method of Selling Goods).

That, and the TO-MORROW, which comes out of it, is the DEALER’S side of the Case.

The CONSUMER’S side now claims our Attention.

TIRES are often Emergency needs! When the Car Owner needs a new Tire he is more likely to need it on-the-road, and “P.D.Q.” than to need it under leisurely “order-as-in-advance” conditions.

Compare these Goodrich “Fair-List” prices, showing tremendous reductions with prices you have previously paid. For instance, old price on Goodrich 34x4 Smooth Tread, $24.35. Present “Fair-List” price, $19.40. Ask your dealer for Users’ Net Price List, showing prices on all sizes.

A black and white photograph showing a vast colony of penguins, likely King penguins, gathered on a sandy beach. The birds are densely packed in the foreground and middle ground, with many standing upright and others resting. In the background, a large, dark, and heavily damaged shipwreck is visible, partially buried in the sand. The sky is bright and overexposed, and the overall scene conveys a sense of a remote, natural habitat.

Solving the Secret of What Gives the Fruit Taste to Fruit Juice

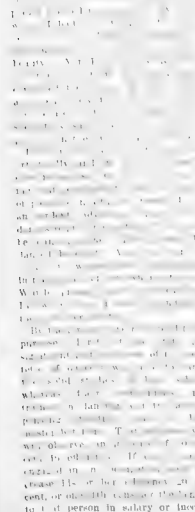

It is a well-known fact that the fruit juice of a fruit is the most valuable part of the fruit. It is the part that gives the fruit its flavor and its nutritive value. But what gives the fruit its taste? What is the secret of the fruit's flavor? This is the question that has puzzled scientists and philosophers for centuries. Now, however, the secret has been solved. The fruit's taste is determined by the presence of certain chemical compounds in the fruit. These compounds are called "flavor compounds" and they are responsible for the fruit's characteristic taste. The fruit's taste is also determined by the presence of certain enzymes in the fruit. These enzymes are called "flavor enzymes" and they are responsible for the fruit's characteristic flavor. The fruit's taste and flavor are therefore determined by the presence of these chemical compounds and enzymes in the fruit. This is the secret of what gives the fruit taste to fruit juice.

Let Thrift Be Your Ruling Habit

THRIFT is a habit.

A habit is a thing you do unconsciously, or automatically, without thought. We are ruled by our habits. When habits are young they are like lion cubs, soft, fluffy, funny, frolicsome little animals. They grow day by day. Eventually they rule you.

Choose ye this day the habit ye would have to rule over you. The habit of thrift is simply the habit which dictates that you shall earn more than you spend. In other words, thrift is the habit that provides that you shall spend less than you earn. Take your choice.

If you are a thrifty person you are happy. When you are earning more than you spend, when you produce more than you consume, your life is of success and you are filled with courage, animation, ambition, good will. Then the world is beautiful, for the world is your view of the world, and when you are right with yourself, all's right with the world.

The habit of thrift proves your power to rule your own psychic self. You are captain of your soul. You are able to take care of yourself, and then out of the excess of your strength you produce a surplus.

Thus you are not only able to take care of yourself, but you are able to take care of some one else—of wife, child, father and mother, to lend a hand to sick people, old people, unfortunate people. This is to live.

The man who cannot earn a living for himself is something less than a man. The man who can barely get a living and no more is little better than a barbarian or a savage.

"All wealth comes from labor applied to land," said Adam Smith, who wrote a wonderful book on the subject of thrift.

This book, "The Wealth of Nations," was published the same year that America's Declaration of Independence was signed. Buckle calls it "the greatest book ever written in its influence for good, save none."

In this book is the statement: "All wealth comes from labor applied to land." Nowadays we say: "All wealth comes from intelligent labor applied to land." Let us say: "All wealth comes from loving labor applied to land." The successful labor is loving labor.

Loving labor and thrift go hand in hand. He who is not thrifty is a slave to circumstance. Fate says: "Do this or starve," and if you have no surplus saved up you are the plaything of chance, the pawn of circumstance, the slave of some one's caprice, a leaf in a storm.

The surplus gives you the power to dictate terms, but most of all it gives you an inward consciousness that you are sufficient unto yourself.

Therefore cultivate the habit of thrift, and the earlier you begin, the better. And no matter how old you are, or how long you have lived, begin this day to save something, no matter how little, out of your earnings.

Off the beaten track of travel there is a country school, the typical little red schoolhouse.

The teacher is a hunchback. Once he wrote: "I know nothing about the science of education. I just love my children, and we study together and work together." And so, out to one side of the school, in Summer time, there is a school garden where every child has a little flower bed or vegetable garden of its own.

The pupil plants the seed he wishes to plant, digs it up sometimes to see how it is coming along, waters it, watches it sprout through the surface, wood it with the kisses of the Summer sun.

He sees it grow and evolve into a beautiful plant, that produces a flower, perhaps, at the top, and an edible beneath the surface.

So last May in this garden the children were growing corn, potatoes, marigolds, sweet williams, violets, and through this working out of doors instead of playing games all the time, the children were learning to economize time, to be saving of time, for time rightly used is the thing which, when it co-operates with love and labor, produces wealth and all the things necessary to life and well being.

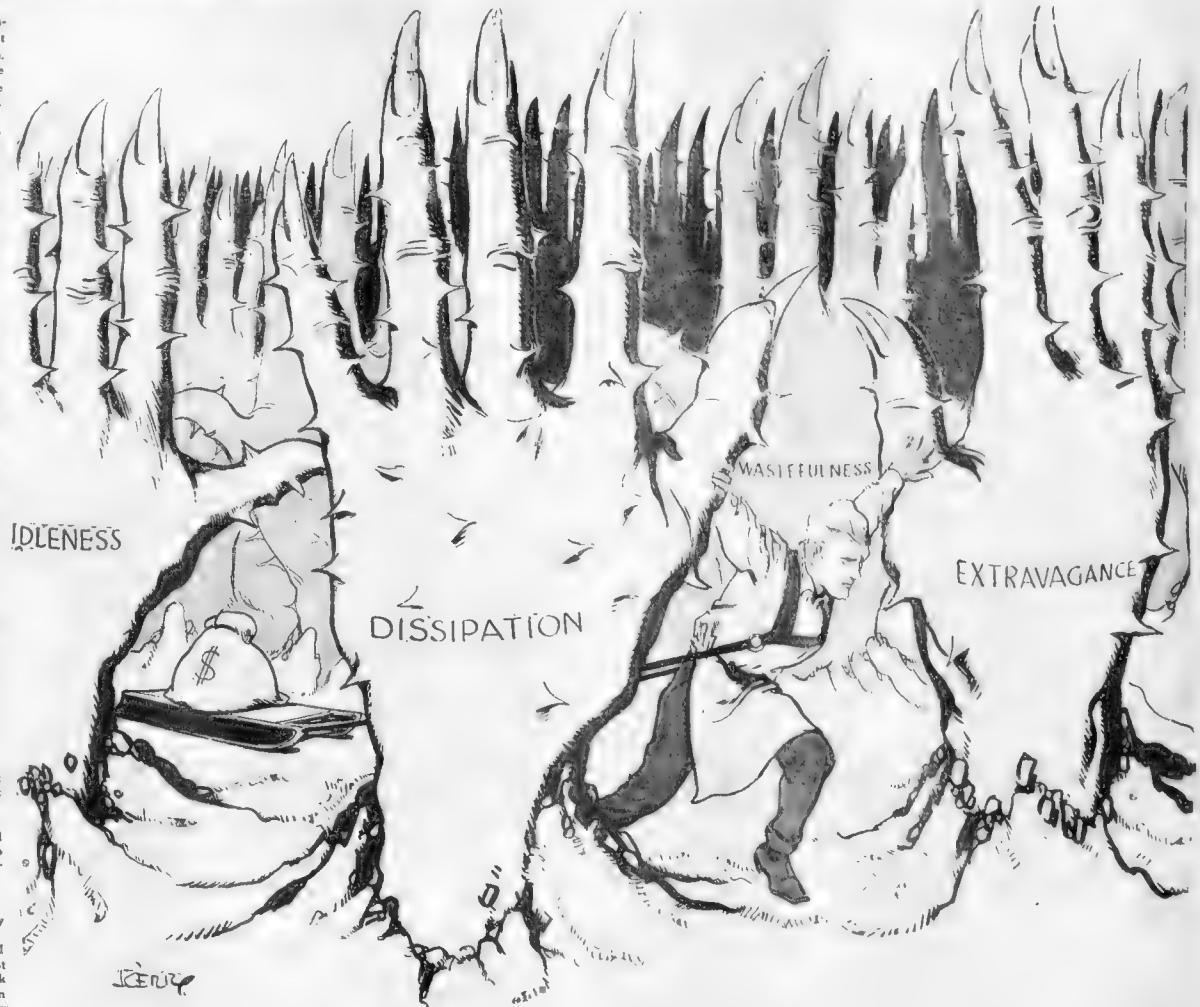

But on a last trip to that little red schoolhouse, the teacher told of another innovation. It was this: A savings bank account for each child in the school, a bank book for each child who can deposit one cent or five cents.

Here was a lesson in economics. And economics is simply the science of business, and business is the science of human service.

Some day business is going to be regarded as the greatest science in the world, for it includes the science of making a living. And my little hunchback teacher recognized this fact, so he is teaching his children the science of saving, and thrift will become, indeed, a habit with those children.

The thrift habit is a sister to a good many other beautiful habits. Thrift implies industry, and of course thrift is economy, and economy means the care of things and their proper use. You do not waste anything that can be used. You save it, care for it, preserve it.

In the country when we get more apples than we can store in the cellar, we peel them, slice them, dry them in the sun or in pans on the stove, and then the children string them with a thread and needle, and we hang them in a dry place in the garret where they can be used when we need them.

Children in the country sometimes will preserve many pounds of apples this way and sell them, and buy clothing or books or a gramophone or slates or shoes.

There is a factory in a country town where there are two hundred and fifty employees, and every employee in that factory has a savings bank account.

Thus this factory is a school run on a principle somewhat like that of the little red schoolhouse where the little hunchback teacher, with no children of his own, is yet the father and big brother to all of his pupils.

Children should early be taught the savings bank habit. Such children will grow up—at least most of them will—able, courageous, helpful, willing, and a few of them will evolve into strong and able people, leaders in any line of undertaking which they may select or which fate may send.

Thrifty people, other things considered, have good health. This implies that they do not overeat, that they sleep at least eight hours, that they go to bed early and get up early. Benjamin Franklin was right, "Time is money." Time is surely money when it is rightly used.

The habit of thrift tends to give clear eyes, good digestion, efficient muscles. People on moderate salaries have no business to patronize taxicabs. Leave that to elderly people who cannot easily board the street car, also leave it to the people who have pride plus and who wear clothes they are afraid will get soiled.

Young people, especially, should economize, always remembering that we should have everything we really need. It is folly to skimp in eating for the sake of saving, or to wear dowdy raiment. Have what you need and do not buy things you do not need.

But there is a joy in going without things—a fine tang in eliminating the superfluous. Old Walt Whitman knew of this when he said: "Henceforth I will complain no more. Done with indoor repinings, strong and content I will take to the open road."

It's lovely to be able to walk, to run, to carry your own grip, to get along without funkies, to eat moderately, sleep hard, breathe deeply and look everybody in the eye with a look which says you can take care of yourself.

In the beating of the heart there is a secondary movement. We call these two movements systole and diastole. Every worthy action has this secondary effect, which is also good.

We know this secondary by the name of "survival value," and survival value is the thing that endures after the act itself is complete.

There is a survival value in the habit of thrift. Besides the money you save you are adding strength to your character, you are digging trenches, building fortifications, laying in ammunition and providing yourself against any attack from enemies, such as poverty, disease, melancholy, distrust, jealousy, insanity.

Ben Franklin is our greatest example of thrift. He wrote more on it and wrote better than any man we know. He began practicing thrift when he was twelve years of age, and he practiced it and wrote on it all his life.

He became the richest man in America in his day, richest not only in money but in health, brains, sanity, good cheer, influence. He was a scientist, a business man, a linguist, a diplomat and a philosopher.

He always paid his way. He founded the University of Pennsylvania, founded the first public library in America, organized an insurance company, pretty nearly captured the lightnings, invented spectacles, manufactured the first cook stove, went to France and borrowed money on which Washington fought the War of the Revolution, and the basis of all the strength and excellence of Benjamin Franklin lay in the fact that very early in life he acquired the habit of thrift.

Shakespeare above all writers we know knew the value of thrift, not only thrift in the matter of money but in the matter of ideas, of working his thoughts up into good coin. He wrote out his thoughts, and thus got the habit of expressing them, and while he was a business man and would not consider himself anything else, he yet lives for us as the greatest writer of all time.

Thrift in thought will lead to the habit of writing, and any man who writes a little every day will become a good writer. We grow by doing.

Well did Shakespeare say: "Thrift, Horatio, thrift!" implying that the young man Horatio should acquire the habit of thrift first and then all else in the way of good things would follow.

The girl or boy who acquires the habit of thrift early in life will be a power for good in any community. Thrift! It is the basis of all the other virtues. To spend less than you earn—this way lies happiness. Thrift!

"Everyone Knows That the Kaiser Was the Originator of the Yellow Peril Argument. The Japanese Are a Race Who Will Not Take Up Arms Without Reason. We Are Always Looking to What Is Good and Just," Count Okuma Declares.

(Count Okuma Prepared This Article for Japanese Magazine, Shin Nippon.)

Mistaken Racial Competition the Cause of War.
The civilization and moral system which the ancestors of the Europeans built up after many years of painstaking effort have been constantly destroyed by the arms of Europe. There are not only the slaughter of human beings but the destruction of property and industry. They are killing about 10,000 men a day. This is a record unparalleled in history since the first wars.

that man's enemies are his enemies. Destroyers of peace and humanity are our enemies. The destroyers of peace and humanity are at once the destroyers of agriculture, industry, navigation and trade, and he is responsible for men of this great slaughter? We must prevent war at all costs? The method, that of military and terrorism of the German Kaiser, and nothing else, are responsible for this disaster. So the German Kaiser is responsible for more than one half of the responsibility for the great slaughter.

Europeans in the present. It is a disgrace that we have taken up arms to maintain the peace in the Orient and at the same time to hasten the coming of peace for the whole world. Our deeds and our aims are always justice. We are imbued with noble ideals and will fight for the sake of humanity and peace. We are not fighting to avenge ourselves for the return of the yellow peril to China, nor are we urging a long and bloody racial war.

Everyone knows that the Kaiser was the originator of the yellow peril argument. Germany, in ten years after voicing the yellow peril argument, robbed China of Tangier, and in ten years after voicing the yellow peril argument, the Kaiser was shot. It was so heard at the time of the Crusades and

Judging from the history of America and the traditions of the nation, and from various American characteristics, America would not be thought to be a place where such prejudice as an anti-Japanese sentiment could enter one's mind. The American nation took up arms for liberty, in order to free herself from British oppression. At that period the Americans were very poor and weak and did not have an adequate supply of food or clothing. They were not well shod and their arms were the "Yellow" Scare in America.

There are living in the South, and the rest of the country, a very great, gradually increasing number of white men. They are not, as is often supposed, of the entire population of the United States. Their intelligence has long been well developed and their wealth has long been undisturbed. As a result, they have occupied a more and more powerful position in the country along the Mississippi River and the central part of the United States. They are engaged assiduously in agriculture. It

They were not only to block and elude but to have a completely free reign from the soil all the way to the sea, and land owners had to mortgage their land to the company in order to be able to finance any other profitable enterprises. So the company gradually steps into the white man's shoes and extends his power toward the centre of the continent.

As a result of this domination of these enterprises and of the franchise upon which the American Republic was to be built, America should not be a nation of suspicion and prejudice. They should be a nation of peace and compulsionless. Yet the Japanese, who were the first to come to the Russo-Japanese war, an anti-Japanese act was suddenly started in California and along the Pacific Coast. Who has brought about this situation? I believe that the yellow race is the cause of this situation. It is one of the first steps out of the explosion.

It is history, very wrong to include the Japanese in the category of the yellow peril. The ancestors of the Japanese race are not Mohammedans. They have never invaded Europe, nor have they ever committed a great wrong. We Japanese are not a prejudiced or ignorant race. From olden times we have known only how to be good and just. When the Jesuit missionaries came to Japan three hundred years ago our people welcomed them and paid them respect. Our people especially pected a man of such rich character," wrote Xavier.

At that time our country was engaged in a war and was in a disordered condition, yet for six million men, the capital—Lima—was the center of a mission, and the country employed the religious profane in political purposes, in co-operation with the Government. According to that, the Shonzen, the "Foreigner," was a very strict officer that the propaganda of the "strange religion" be stopped, but he had not yet decided to allow the country to foreign influence. He was a man of great energy, and at that time planned treason with the Island of Ambaka as a center of operations. The Shonzen was very much incensed and ordered the emperor to send out a war of extermination against the Catholics in which 200,000 were massacred. But compared with the massacre of the Thirty Years' war in Europe, that massacre was a child's play, and the emperor mentioned. The former was a the election is not accurately known here, the Democrats seem to retain the majority, although they may have lost a few seats. The Republican party has a minority, both in the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Progressive party, led by Mr. Roosevelt, is at least a great deal of their power. I understand that there is only one Progressive member in the House of Representatives, a complete defeat for them. There will remain only two parties in American politics, the Democrats and the Republicans. Now, judging from the present condition of the Japanese sentiment may subside a little, though we cannot rest assured as yet.

There is a country where the labor union have great success. In the last year of the Horikis, many would doubt whether the country is a part of the United States, so different are the conditions there. Various different people are bred in the country, and the American people themselves. Besides, in the Japan's Feeling in the West.—The Japanese are a race who will not take up arms to offend anyone. They always follow to what is good and just. To include us in the category of the yellow peril races and then agitate against us is simply an outrage that is an extreme bludge. Yet the fact is that the German Kaiser has been a troublemaker with his yellow peril ideas, and while we had managed to form an alliance with Russia and France, compelled Japan to return to the Yellow Sea, and to Japan to return to the Korean Peninsula. Since that time the Japanese have been predicted to be a certain section of the United States. This is not to be regretted.

But political conditions in America have undergone a change. The Congressional election in the dark—a reminder that pain and disease and death are "there," as well as dreams and hopes. What a terrible thing to be warned in readiness for war, as it is for all artists and teachers, poets, and those who are engaged in fiery and noble work. The beauty are often tempted to forget that there is a dark side to the world.

Art is quite often concerned with the escape from these things. It is a much more beautiful to touch with the things that are in the world. The artist may, indeed, be defined as the person who is able to see the world as it is, and to be able to reconcile the love of beauty with the instinctive recoil from the grim and sordid realities which surround him.

I have always been interested in art, and I have tried to make religious art a worthy and noble work. What a terrible thing to be warned as we have been in the habit of offering

What is meant in this article by "a certain number" in Japan, of course. To say such things as this in the Twentieth Century is astonishing.

Heaven takes sides with the just. There is reason why such mistaken views should not be allowed to prevail forever. The example of this has been shown in the fall of Roosevelt on one hand and on the other by the fate of the German Kaiser, which is sealed. The Kaiser will never or late surrender to the allies, and as Progressives in America have lost their power, so will to lose his influence in international affairs.

His influence must be removed. Until that

In the address by former Premier Balfour, I said a first victory will bring about a new victory. The news of the victory of our force in Tsingtau will encourage the armies of our allies, and I believe that before long we will wear of a great victory of the allies which will give a death blow to Germany. We must have this victory brought about by all means. The

Our attitude toward the American people will be the same. We shall attack any mistaken ideas or policies without mercy. We do not, of course, hate the individuals. The time has come when humanity should awaken. The present war has brought about the opportunity. We should free ourselves from the mistaken racial competition arising from prejudice.

This is a great lesson to be learned from the war, and we hope that the United States, which is our good, friendly neighbor, will at once forget such unreasonable anti-Japanese sentiment which is based on prejudices.

The World Must Obey Malthusian Principles.

The people who cannot meet this struggle will be crushed. Some one may say that even though a country fail, the people of the country may still be able to live. But if a country falls, being unable to stand in the struggle for existence, it is bound to be oppressed by other races and their increase stopped. If one country is crushed, the human race will be lessened. If human increase will cease, in that way we understand human slaughter is perpetuated. Therefore, we must be able to stand. I believe that the great nations of the world will be able to govern those who are inferior. I believe within ten years we will be able to govern the other great governing countries, and others will be governed by them, will pay homage to them. The great countries, each having a population of 100,000,000, will be able to govern the other developed, and the other countries will be attached to these great ones. For instance, the United States will be able to govern such countries. There may be one or two other independent countries. But the nations which are governed? We should from now on prepare to govern the world. We should be able to govern the world. We will strive by all means to stand upon the foundation of Justice and peace. We will be the victors in the peaceful competition.

BRANDEIS PICTURES A VAST IMPENDING GALAMITY IN EUROPE

Fully One-Fourth of the Jews of the World, Through no Fault of Their Own, in Danger of Extermination

The sad plight of the Jews in Poland and Galicia, over three million and a half of whom have been driven from their homes by the military occupation of the country and have been reduced to a state of actual starvation, has moved the Jewish people of the United States as they have not been moved since the time of the Russian Pogroms.

At that time the Jews of this country contributed nearly $1,500,000 for the relief of the victims.

In the present calamity leading Jews throughout the country have organized an American Jewish Relief committee. A New England branch has established headquarters in this city and has begun the work of raising a relief fund.

Louis D. Brandeis, the publicist, is chairman of the New England branch.

Mr. Brandeis has prepared the following article for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN setting forth the desperate needs of the beset Jewish people in the war zone:

By LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

"THREE and a half million Jews are facing slow death by starvation in the European war zone today.

"At no time since the expulsion of the Jews from Spain in 1492 has the race been confronted by such horrible conditions.

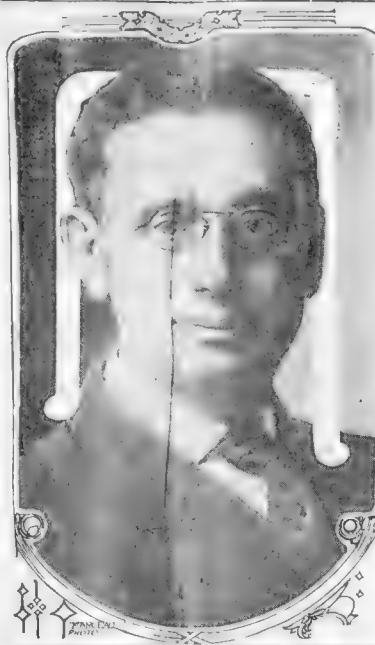

"Fully ONE-FOURTH of the Jewish population of the entire world, through no fault of their own, ARE IN IMMINENT DANGER OF EXTERMINATION.

"Whether or not relief shall be furnished these millions of over-seas sufferers largely depends upon the citizens of our own country.

"Massachusetts men have contributed $30,000 to the Jewish Relief Fund during the last thirty days, but that is not enough by any means.

"The committee in charge of this fund locally positively must have an additional $70,000 for relief work immediately.

"Further delay will make impossible the saving of these people, the women and children of the Jewish race, the non-combatants.

"Weakened by centuries of exploitation and oppression unequalled in the history of the world, THESE WOMEN AND CHILDREN HAVE LITTLE OR NO POWER OF RESISTANCE TODAY.

Mere words but dimly convey even a slight impression of the fearful hardships thrust into their lives by the great war.

"Once the people of our country realize how widespread is the devastation in the war zone, our work of relief will be made easier.

"In some of the towns and cities along the border of Poland, Galicia and Austria, the territory has changed hands seven times since the war started.

"Each succeeding battle for the possession of these towns and cities has brought more intense suffering to the 'man farthest down,' the Jewish population.

"Scourged by illness, weakened by famine, face to face with death itself, the inevitable obliteration of one-third of the race there must follow, if we fail them in this awful crisis.

"Governmental care for the afflicted, as Western Europe and America understand and work out such problems, does not obtain there. This but adds to the horrors of the situation.

"Of the 9,000,000 Jews in the war zone as a whole, 3,500,000 today practically are BEGGARS DEPENDENT UPON CHARITY.

"It is for this vast army of non-combatants that the Jewish Relief Committee is appealing to the people of Massachusetts, and to the nation at large.

"Our duty is so unmistakable, so self-evident, that I am confident the men and women of Massachusetts will not be found wanting in this great crisis."

WAR HAS DESTROYED THE HOMES OF 2,000,000 JEWS IN EUROPE

By ALEXANDER BRIN.

Two million Jews—one-sixth of a Jewish population of 12,000,000—have been driven from their homes by the war. These Jews are now in a state of actual starvation. The Jewish people of the United States are now faced with the task of raising a relief fund to help these victims. The American Jewish Relief Committee has been organized for this purpose. It is now in the hands of the American people to decide whether or not they will contribute to this fund. Appalling Suffering Among Galician Refugees Told by Jewish Advocate

The Boston Jewish Advocate prints the following editorial describing the extreme poverty of the Galician refugees: With all the recognition of the sufferings of the Jews in the various war zones it is still to be doubted whether the average reader really recognizes the nature of the demand that is being made for help. We say this for it appears that people are giving, but they are only giving in proportion to what they give to institutions when they are told that a deficit has to be made good.

Here then are a few of the appalling facts. In Vienna there are 170,000 poor Galician refugees. Their poverty is the very depth of want, for 70,000 of them come into the city with not even a half cent apiece in their possession. There are 25,000 Jews in a similar condition in Moravia, and 75,000 in Bohemia.

And this does not account for the two millions in the Russo-Polish area. Their want has been eloquently depicted by this single fact:

The Jews who are distributing charity in Russo-Poland have issued paper money for the lowest denomination of Russian currency—a single kopeck. A kopeck is worth somewhat less than a half cent, and if half cents, one by one, have been distributed in the form of credit currency, the whole source of economic existence must have reached an ebb which is wholly indescribable to American readers.

To this we can add this message of hope that a single cent will at present feed a man or a woman or a child in the war zone. It is, therefore, in our power to relieve this flood of want.

Children give cents.

Boys and girls give nickels.

Young men and women give quarters.

Adults give dollars.

Let everybody give every week "each according to his means."

BABIES IN ARMS ARE DYING BECAUSE THEIR UNFED MOTHERS CANNOT NURTURE THEM.

Give quickly, give often.

Rigid Restrictions.
There is no way of relieving the misery that these people are now in. The Jewish people of the United States are now faced with the task of raising a relief fund to help these victims. The American Jewish Relief Committee has been organized for this purpose. It is now in the hands of the American people to decide whether or not they will contribute to this fund. The committee in charge of this fund locally positively must have an additional $70,000 for relief work immediately.

An Appeal for Aid.

We are the physically weakest of the physically weak, the women and children of the Jewish race, the non-combatants. Weakened by centuries of exploitation and oppression unequalled in the history of the world, THESE WOMEN AND CHILDREN HAVE LITTLE OR NO POWER OF RESISTANCE TODAY.

A Chronic Condition

When I Got a New Lip and You Got a Big New Nose

(To the Tune of "When You Wore a Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose")

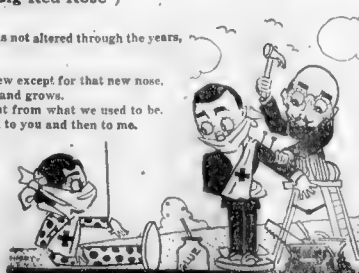

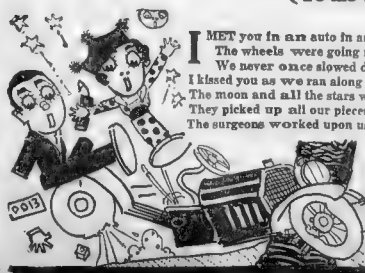

By "HANK"

I MET you in an auto in an old Kentucky town,
The wheels were going round,
We never once slowed down;
I kissed you as we ran along and bumped against a tree—
The moon and all the stars we both did see.
They picked up all our pieces and to save our ebbing lives
The surgeon worked upon us with their ever ready knives.

CHORUS.

Then I got a new lip, a grand and brand new lip,
And you got a big new nose;
They tried to save me, a new face they gave me,
And a fine new set of toes.
It kept them guessing, they said, "It's distressing
To find where each part goes."
I looked like a julep when I got that new lip,
And you got a big new nose.

The face the surgeons gave me has not altered through the years,
I still retain my ears,
Though only one ear hears;
You are the same sweet girl I knew except for that new nose.
I notice that it grows and grows and grows.
We both look somewhat different from what we used to be.
And often think of what they did to you and then to me.

MONTAGUE'S COLUMN

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

HE DOES MEAN SOMETHING AFTER ALL

OUR hens were worried when they found their cat and sheep.
But though we used to be afraid, we did never earn their keep.
We tried to control them, but the phone was as it was.
Each morning in the house I had a story worth a fuss.
We showed them comic papers, we asked them the way,
But they were dull and useless and they were as slow.

IN dreadful desperation we gave a fancy ball.
But though they were invited they did not come at all.
We hired spellbinding speakers, regardless of expense,
To stir them to their duty with ringing eloquence.
We shot off roman candles, we tried to teach them a song,
And then someone suggested we read them Henry Jones.

IMAGINE our amazement, when without pause or rest
The creatures started laying as if they were just set.
Of course, we could not fathom the meaning of the words.
That from the writer's pen we read the listening birds.
And though we can't get Henry, we must still have to hand him;
We've proved beyond all question that chickens understand him!

ANOTHER NEED OF THE HOUR

With Bryan's son, or nephew, or something in the line,
I want an attorney's office, and with Bryan's brother, I want a relative to take for anything I'll call him and for the best of the reason, I want him from an Industrious Relations Commission.

Can it be that Secretary Bryan, who is busy collecting

Thomas Jefferson? Thomas Jefferson, you know, used to be a prominent Democrat.

Everything you read here to-day you can see in fascinating Pathe Motion Pictures at the Motion Picture Theatres this week. Next Sunday another chapter of "The Exploits of Elaine" and new Pathe reels.

Synopsis of Previous Chapters.

THE New York police are mystified by a series of murders of prominent men. The principal clue to the murderer is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "Clutching Hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Bennett, a newspaper man.

Clutching Hand tries to kill Elaine by means of a diabolical device which generates a poison in the wall paper of her room that is deadly to breathe for any length of time. Again Kennedy's scientific knowledge is brought into play just in season to save the heroine from death.

KENNEDY went the next day to the Dodge house, and, as usual, Perry Bennett, his newspaper friend, was there in the library waiting for him. "I'm still waiting for you," said Bennett, "but I'm not going to wait any longer. I've brought you a little document that may interest you," remarked Kennedy, reaching into his pocket and pulling out an envelope.

Elaine took it up and looked at the paper with interest. "Oh, how thoughtful of you!" she exclaimed in surprise.

It was a permit from the police made out in her name allowing her to carry a revolver. "Thank you," she cried eagerly.

Elaine examined the gun with interest, then, raising it, pointed it playfully at Bennett. "Oh, no, no," exclaimed Kennedy, taking her arm quickly and gently, deflecting the weapon. "You wouldn't think it is a toy. It explodes at a mere touch of the trigger—when that safety razor is turned."

Bennett had realized the danger and had jumped back, almost mechanically. As he did so, he saw, in the corner of the room, a small, dark, shadowy figure standing by the wall, knocking it over with a resounding crash.

"I beg pardon," he ejaculated, "I'm very sorry. That was very awkward of me."

Jennings, who had been busy about the porters at the doorway, started to pick up the fallen knight. Some of the pieces were broken, and the three gathered about as the butler ran to fit them together again as best he could.

"Too bad, too bad," apologized Bennett profusely. "I really forgot how close it was to the thing."

"Oh, never mind," returned Elaine, a little crestfallen. "It is smashed all right—but it was my fault. Jennings, send someone to repair it."

She turned to Kennedy. "But I do wish you would teach me how to use this thing," she added, touching the automatic gingerly.

"Gladly," he returned.

"Won't you join us, Mr. Bennett?" asked Elaine.

"No," the young lawyer smiled. "I'm afraid I can't. You see, I had an engagement with another client and he's already late."

He took his hat and coat and, with a reluctant farewell, moved toward the hallway.

A moment later Elaine and Craig followed, while Jennings finished restoring the armor as nearly as possible as it had been.

It was late that night that a masked figure succeeded in raising itself to the narrow ornamental ledge under Elaine's bedroom window.

Elaine was a light sleeper, and, besides, Rusty, her faithful dog, now fully recovered from the poison, was in her room.

Rusty growled and the sudden noise awakened her.

Startled, Elaine instantly thought of the automatic. She reached under her pillow, keeping very quiet, and drew forth the gun that Craig had given her. Stealthily concealing her actions under the covers, she leveled the automatic at the figure silhouetted in her window and fired three times.

The figure fell back.

Down in the street below, the assistant of the Clutching Hand who had waited while Taylor Dodge was electrocuted, was waiting as his confederate, "Pitts Slim"—which indicated that he was a tough, very low natured fellow, was degrading his nativity—made the attempt.

As Slim came to the door, Elaine, having fallen back from the window above mortally wounded, the assistant of the Clutching Hand, and carried him out of sight hurriedly.

Elaine, by this time, had turned on the lights and had run to the window to look out. Rusty was barking, very low natured fellow, was degrading his nativity—made the attempt.

In a side street near by, stood a waiting automobile, at the wheel of which sat another of the emissaries of the Clutching Hand. The driver looked up, startled, as he saw his fellow hurry around the corner carrying the wounded "Pitts Slim." It was the work of just a moment to drop the wounded man, as comfortably as possible under the circumstances. In the rear seat, while his pals started the car off with a jerk in the hurry of escape.

Jennings, having hastily slipped his trousers on over his pajamas, came running down the hall, carrying a flashlight, came in the other direction. Aunt Josephine appeared a few seconds later, adding to the general excitement.

"What's the matter?" she asked, anxiously.

"A burglar," cried Elaine, "and he's still holding the gun in her hand. Someone tried to get into my window."

"Mr. Jennings," said Aunt Josephine, in a low voice, "I'm afraid it's a phine."

Elaine was doing her best now to quiet the fears of her aunt, and the rest of the household.

"Well," she laughed, a little nervously, now that it was all over, "I want you all to go to bed and stop worrying about me. Don't you see I'm perfectly able to take care of myself? Besides, there isn't a chance now, of the burglar coming back. Why I shot him."

Clutching Hand, an old-fashioned house in the Westchester suburbs. It was a carefully hidden place, back from the main road, surrounded by trees, with a driveway leading to it.

The car containing the wounded "Pitts Slim" drew up, and the other two men leaped out of it. With a hurried glance about, they unlocked the front door with a passkey and entered, cursing the man.

Inuons was another emissary of the Clutching Hand, a rather studious looking chap.

"Why, what's the matter?" he exclaimed as the crooks entered his room supporting their burden.

"Slim got a cold," they panted as they added, "and he's dead."

"Trying to get into the Dodge house," Elaine did it."

Slim was quite healthy, badly wounded and was bleeding profusely. A glance at him was enough for the studious-looking chap. He went to a secret panel and, pressing it down, took out what was apparently a secret house telephone.

In another part of this mysterious house was the secret room of the Clutching Hand himself where he hid his identity from even his most trusted followers. It was a small room, lined with books on every conceivable branch of science that might aid him, and containing innumerable little odds and ends of paraphernalia that might help in his nefarious criminal career.

His telephone rang and he took down the receiver.

"Pitts Slim's been wounded, badly, chief," was all he waited to hear.

With scarcely a word he hung up the receiver, then opened a table drawer and took out a full face mask. Next he went to a nearby bookcase, pressed another secret spring and a panel opened. He passed through and a mask appeared and the Clutching Hand, all covered in blood, appeared in the doorway.

A moment later he fell from some ledge and was caught in the couch on which the wounded crook lay, and examined him.

"How did it happen?" he asked at length.

"Miss Dodge shot him," answered the others, "with an automatic."

"Pitts Slim's been wounded. Made him give it to her!" he exclaimed with suppressed fury.

For a moment the Clutching Hand stopped to consider. Then he seized the regular telephone.

"Dr. Martin!" he asked, as he got the number he called.

It was only a matter of minutes before the doctor was speeding over the now deserted suburban roads, apparently on his errand of mercy.

At the address that had been given him he had cleverly made over the wire he knew that ran up the steps to the door. A ring at the bell brought a sleepy man to the door, in his trousers and nightgown.

"What's the patient?" asked Dr. Martin, eagerly.

"Patient?" repeated the man, rubbing his eyes. "There's no one sick here."

"Then what did you telephone for?" asked the doctor wearily.

"Telephone?" I didn't call up any one. I was asleep."

Slowly it dawned on the doctor that it was a false alarm, and that he must be the victim of some practical joke.

A DETECTIVE NOVEL AND A Motion Picture Drama

"Elaine was kidnapped—in the armor," Cried Kennedy
This is from the Moving Picture Play of "The Exploits of Elaine" by the Famous Pathe Players

"Well, that's a great note," he growled, as the man shut the door.

He descended the steps, muttering harsh language at some unknown trickster. As he climbed back into his machine and made ready to start two men seemed to rise before him as if from nowhere.

As a matter of fact, they had been sent there by the Clutching Hand, and were hiding in a nearby cellarway until their chance came.

One man stood on the running board on either side of him, and the two men seemed menacingly at him.

"Hello ahead," said a muttered one man, waving him in the darkness with his gun close to his forehead.

The other kept his place on the running board, and on this drove in the direction of the mysterious dark house. But as a car began down the road, they halted and left the car beside the walk.

Dr. Martin was too surprised to marvel at anything now, as he realized that he was in the power of two desperate men. Quickly they handcuffed him.

He seemed an admirable wale, as they led him to the door.

He felt that he had been taken into a house and along the way, which they were making unnecessarily long in order to destroy all recollection of the way out. He knew that he was in a room, and he knew that he was in a room.

A moment later he felt from some ledge the hand of his captors, and he knew that he was in a room, and he knew that he was in a room.

He knew that he was in a room, and he knew that he was in a room.
